Forecast For Southwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Friday 26 Mar 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Windy and colder with showers, at times wintry tonight.

This Evening and Tonight:
During the evening and overnight blustery showers continue from the west with clearer spells between. Showers turning wintry over the highest ground with the risk of a few icy stretches. Minimum temperature 0 deg C (32 deg F).

Saturday:
A cold start with the chance of a local rural frost. Sunny spells through the morning with scattered showers through the day but becoming increasingly cloudy through the afternoon. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Turning blustery into Sunday with extensive cloud and perhaps some patchy outbreaks of light rain at times. Drier and brighter on Monday and Tuesday with sunny spells and turning warmer.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.